Ron:

Thanks, I appreciate your moving quickly on this.

As to the keywords, I'm doing the same and intend to get those to you by next Wednesday. I was out today for an arbitration and have other matters occupying me through Monday. I hope that getting them to you by then will not hold anything up, but do I understand you will need time to review them as well.

As we discussed yesterday, my intent is to have everything lined up prior to my departure for Italy on May 8th so that collection could possibly be completed while I'm gone. Contingent on us confirming keywords within the next two weeks, is that a timeline that seems viable on your end?

After I reviewed your changes, I sent them to him this morning. At about 1:00 p.m., he responded that he would be reviewing them as soon as possible but that might not be for a few hours. I expect that I'll have them back by morning.

Where's the trade secret list that you owe us? And what's the status of the keyword list? Has Sam Castor looked at it to fill in the bracketed sections? We cannot approve it until we have a final copy of your proposed keywords.

Ron:

Here is my redline to your changes to the Consent Form. I believe my final comment fully explains my concerns in as neutral and as objective a way as possible with the understanding that you likely will be passing it on to your client, but please call me if you have any concerns about what I am saying or how your client will take it. It is not intended to in any way change the terms of the agreement between our clients.

Chris:

Please see attached. Please note that, in the Directive, I make a few comments in the redline in addition to the edits. I suspect that OpenText may need to address my comments, but you might have some insight as well. Feel free to contact me via phone or email if you want to discuss anything further.
